

Ignorant Notions

I recently been asked by someone I felt knew me better than most why I haven't expressed remorse for past deeds ? That to me is a loaded question that has no correct answer or I should say satisfactory answer to the vast majority of people with biased and prejudicial mindsets ! My question is what good does my expressing remorse for past deeds do for me in seeking help for the injustice I suffer and endure ? Is society remorseful for the injustice I suffer and endure ? Will my expressing remorse for perceived past sins help others to express remorse for not speaking out or helping me overcome the injustice I suffer and endure ? Why should I, express remorse for being human and having made mistakes to anyone other than my God who has already shown me His grace ? In my faith - I have no remorse in serving my Father God, when it is His will being done through me ! When I was reborn in His Spirit - I no longer got judged for the deeds of the flesh, since I was no longer of the flesh ... I am only a sojourner of this world - who judges others by their spirit and not the flesh - I expect those of this world to slander and misjudge me as they done my Lord and Brother Jesus Christ - He never expressed remorse for the labels others placed upon Him ! I suppose this is my response to that question of remorse asked of me - Without remorse, I have no control of how it will be received ...