

Another Day In The Insane Asylum

Good Morning My Love,

How's my Cowgirl doing this morning ? Want to go for a ride ? We only had a half of day of day room yesterday and spent the whole day dressed in class A's, our full orange prison issued uniform for two cell inspections - the second one was a true harassment one - plus the big electric generator outside in front of my cell ran for about four straight hours - giving off fumes and a deafening noise - yesterday was not a very good day as far as harassment goes ... But I survived - smile - B-)) We got a white shirt (LT) that is pissed off at a couple guys on the floor because he came out with some rule about how we are supposed to be dressed during the day that wasn't right and they quoted the rule to him and he didn't like that ! So he got his pay back by keeping us in our oranges all day for a second cell inspection - which only took place on this floor - something the guys learned by hollering upstairs to see if they had a second cell inspection too - which they didn't - Just another example of the petty bullshit that goes on around here - B-)) It was more of an annoyance than anything else - the damn generator running got to me more with the noise and fumes ...

It's a good thing I don't dwell on all the negative stuff that goes on around here and I like that I have decided to record as much of it on my blog as possible - maybe one day - I'll get some pay back ...

On the bright side - I have you sending my positive loving vibes and I can smile knowing your love is stronger than any negativity they can throw at me - smile with me Sweetheart ... B-)))))

Okay - I will try to call you this afternoon - hopefully we will get a full day of day room - hearing your voice always has a calming effect and keeps me smiling - love you - One Eagle - XoXo