

Between the Bars

Fathers Day Story

* Phone *

* Justice *

* * *

It has been very difficult to call home on fathers day or any day for that matter. I think I've only called them 4 times in the last 23 years of my incarceration. My parents are elderly and have no money other than my Dads Retirement and that barely gets them by. Sometimes they could not except my collect calls - which did break my heart and I'm sure they were not to happy about it either. My parents live in Maine and I'm incarcerated in California. No I can not call as I'd like to see prisons allow inmates in state prisons to purchase card calling phones that inmates would be able to purchase - It would save our people having to foot the bill. It's been a burden not being able to say I love to my Dad - And just to hear his voice. I miss you too. I hope that Government will read this. But I honestly say I've lost faith in thier intervention of prisons. Here in California prisons - Rehabilitation is just word that Casually wets our state asseby members. Really they could care less if we have family ties. for Government change is a word left in fairy tales.

James Collins E-81393