El Monte?

OD'ed on Ludes

Snorted Cannabinol

Regularly stole bottles of Booze ...

and then Vandalized the School. These are some of the MEMORIES.

(Who R-U?)

A couple of us Kidz thought that we'd travel over the San-Gabriel Mountains and hike into Death Valley for some reason. Fortunately we were "captured" in Azusa Canyon.

One of my last Memories there is Dashing down the alley with 12-pks.

Years later though I returned to party with Silver Certificates I had burgled from a neighbor in Long Beach, where my family moved sometime between when my 6 Mo. juvenile placement in Boys Homes rather became a 3 yr. tour and thousands of miles on the run. Yes, El Monte is where the adventure my life would become was charted-out you might say,

I just turned 51 in Feb. and now have 28 of them in exile — with no hope of ever getting out. Does it seem that my Blogs posit "excuses" for my current state? Far be it the case. I can't say that I made the best of all the "how's" - as you say, but in hindsight it appears I never refused to live for the Present. What a life!

Jesus, reincarnated, ye say? Aren't we all like-wise Sons of the One "Eternal"-ness? Don't worry, we will re-colonize Marz before the nuclear holocaust makes Earthlings mutate — again. Do you remember the "Chariots of the Gods"? Haven't you ever watched the Superman Movie? Times change ... and we change with the times ... isn't it awesome?

Okay then — I'm looking forward to seeing more of what you have to say. A "name" would be helpful. Then ... tell me ... after so many years ... how in the world did you discover me here? Be blessed.
