Hey! Tough Guy

By DeKor Egan

Said you were a tough guy, when you're out in the streets,
but you never had a strap, and you're soft as a peach.
The tats you have, you thought would make you look tough, you sound stupid! Like a meow from the crime dog McGruff.
They call you a cell soldier, behind doors yo voice got bass,
when you're in a fight, you pray you don't get hit in the face.
You say you've been in wars, that lyin don't you dare,
you got as much backbone, as a soggy gummy bear.
You say you like to fight, but yo knuckles aint bruised,
you're softer, than the gel insoles inside yo shoes.
Are you really a tough guy, where have you been?
Penitentiary Poses, lyin to all of yo soft azz friends.
You aint no tough guy, you're tough like Dove soap,
bout as tough as water, that's going down yo throat.
You aint tough, I seen jerky harder than you,
yo talks show your faults, you bit off more than you can chew.
You're bout as tough, as oil on a newborn baby, you're bout as tough, as a sweet tart! MAYBE!
we know your kind, you claim you're egotistic,
but let's keep it real, your traits are feministic.
If they open up yo bones, and look deep in yo gristle,
they'll see you're as soft, as a toothbrush bristle!
Stop beatin yo chest! we know you a chump,
your game is see thru, like the hose on a breast pump.
Don't turn yo lip up, you're soft as momma's apple pie,
you're bout as hard as hello Kitty, you aint no tough guy!
