

"Value Your Time"

One of the best expressions of love, is time. The substance of something, can be measured by how much time, one is willing to invest in that something.

The more time you give to something the more you will receive back in return from that something, because of the time and effort you gave whole heartedly to it. You will also treasure it more, due to the precious time you've invested in the nurturing of it. If you would like to understand a persons values, just observe how they spend their time. Time is a most precious gift, definitely. You should always spend your time wisely, because time is essential and of great essence. Our stay here (on this planet) is but a short one, though it may appear a very long existence, it is but a blink of the eye to our creator. One can make more money, more trouble or even more love, but neither can one delay time or move it forward at a faster pace of ones own will or other than what has already been decreed. So slow it down, take your time and think, before you end up wasting your time. We always say I'll start tomorrow or, oh, we got time... and the truth be told, we would like to think that, but you never know when its your time (the calling of your soul). So, live as if you were dying. I'm done wasting my time, I've already wasted too much. Unknown Prison Author. 2 Exonerate JT
