

"Expand my horizon"

5-16-11

Greetings and salutations to the "conscious minds"....

My name is: Steven Robinson and you can note that in my heart of hearts, I sincerely hope and trust that my blogs will bring about some very intriguing, fruitful, and productive exchanges while also establishing many sustaining and wholesome rapport(s) with the conscious minds and warm souls at large.

That being said, you can rest assured that I am open-minded and nonjudgmental. I'm very engaging, intellectually savvy, and humbly curious. "I'm a critical thinker". I'm progressive, realistic, egalitarian and quite humanitarian.... I am: "A conscious mind".

While those are just a select few of my many core characteristics and attributes, they by no means fully outline who I am as a continuously evolving being on a mental, emotional, spiritual, and intellectual plain.

As a 1st time blogger with this opportunity to share and express critical thoughts, ideas, concerns, comments, and understandings is in "my opinion" an extraordinary and tremendous opportunity with many great upsides. Because, once again, in "my opinion" creating and expanding one's social network and interaction with the masses of conscious and diverse minds can definitely soar to the zenith of expressions and potentials. Therefore, I personally value the virtues of organic communication, dialogue and or exchanges and I'm sure, or would like to think that you all do too. So, you can trust that whatever endeavors you as individuals seek in your "personal pursuit of happiness", as long as they're "good, wholesome, egalitarian, productive, and righteously stimulating I'll be here to do my part as an advisor, supporter, to inspire, and encourage you to conquer such heights of unparalleled and unadulterated joy and wellness. Therefore you could bet the last hair on your pinky toe that I'll be honored to listen to, engage in and learn from anyone with the best of intentions. Only if you will promise to do the same with me via "pinky swear" ☺☺. !! L.O.L

While moving forward, please take note that the theme of my blogs will consist of: "consciousness" (e.g. neo-soul, afro centric, spoken word, revolutionary/independence struggles) and the like. However there will also be topics that range from but are not limited to: thought-provoking, and well researched literature of the protest genre, world independence; great thinkers; world religions; political affairs; world events; poetry; memoirs; cultural and social sciences; popular entertainment; music; sports; health; and fitness etc. A lot huh!?! ☺☺ Well, I told you all that I was "conscious and curious"!☺☺

That being said, I cordially invite your pure and truest insight, questions, concerns, or comments, on said ideas and topics as I transport through this blogosphere. Most importantly I would be thankful for all input from the conscious citizenry, the masses of individuals who'll take my blogs and expound on them to the max via blog and, for those of you who so choose, please contact me personally at the address provided below. Let me in on your thoughts, ideas, issues, and concerns as well.

What you have to say matters. I wouldn't be of the conscious, egalitarian, or humanitarian breed if it didn't matter to me. I want to be, remain and become more socially aware and politically involved. I want to know how I can be useful and active in a cause greater than myself. I strive to be relevant in the most humble manner to the eco-system of humanity. Therefore, I encourage all viewers to challenge me; I'm always willing to learn as I firmly believe that my perspectives and analyses can always be corrected, upgraded, and uplifted via a more thoroughly informed and practically proven course of action.

Okay, that's it for now, you'll have to read my blogs to learn more but please note that because of my being behind enemy lines (incarceration) I won't be able to instantly read about and or review your questions, comments, concerns or ideas {i.e. It could be weeks before I receive a printed copy of them.} Therefore, I encourage and strongly suggest that for those of you who truly wish to establish a more engaging and personal line of communication with me to respond via blog and by writing me personally at:

Mr. Steven Robinson #97464, P.O.Box-9900/W.S.P.F, Boscobel, Wisconsin 53805**