

Prologue

Have you ever found yourself questioning the World? God? Society? Friends or Family? Love or Hate? Or how about yourself for the matter? And was there ever a time you were unable to draft the right answer for yourself or for a friend perhaps? If so, you will definitely find likeness in blogging with me.

The continued postings will come from the very fabric of my reality; non-prison experiences, prison-life, and the power of will when it comes to prevailing over oppositions, a debility, temptations, etc.

My hope is to befriend a blogger(s) by bringing whom into my world. In this world I speak of, I would like to share with you it's ideas, truths, hopes, opinions, beliefs, struggles, flaws, dreams, and love, therein. I want nothing more but for you to know me through my expressions and willful openness. My postings will be for you, but be free to share with a friend if necessary. If I can will you to think, feel, act, or live out your potential by jumping over any and all fears or hurdles, only then, am I doing what I set out to do. You may count on me to say something you didn't think of saying, think of doing, or simply something you thought you couldn't say or do. Clearly, together, once we begin to see the realness in reality, the better equipped we are ~~will be~~ to deal with the world accordingly. The less clearly we see the realness of reality, the more our minds will fall to the waistline of falsehood, misconceptions and illusions-by which, we will be less able to determine what is best for us.

I do not profess to have gifts greater than the next person. I'm no Superior Being, Genius, Know-it-all, nor am I licensed on the subjects I'm soon to expound on. Conversely, however, I do believe I have something therapeutic to offer. And I would like for you to have this something. In return, I ask that you challenge me, question me, learn me, write me, pray the prayer for me, and keep me in your thoughts as well as in your hearts.

I look forward to the moments ahead and the idea of building an unbiased, boundless, built-to-last friendship with you. If there's a topic under discussion or question in thought I'm not getting around to answering or asking fast enough...please do blog and raise the topic(s) or question(s) of your interest.

Thank you