

PAUL BEHIND THE WALL...

Greeting's people,

It's been a couple of weeks since my last entry and I have been disturbed by this, but alas, tis the nature of life behind the wall. Today I am sending up this smoke signal in the hopes that someone out there reads it and responds. I know that since I started this blog my message has been one of opinion and compassion for the tragedies and hard times occurring in the world and that is just what was going on in my head at the time. I am new to this blogging thing as it's something that came into being since I've been locked up and I am not to clear on the mechanics of it. Am I supposed to write whatever is on my mind? Or do I write about what all goes on in here? Do I share insight into how I came to be here and what has shaped me? Can anyone let me know?

Until next time.... I'm Paul Behind the Wall.....6/15/11

<http://betweenthebars.org/blogs/406/>