

bloggers.

6-6-2011

hey whats up this is Jason how you all doing? well today is my day off from work so Im just relaxing in the cell today. on my days off I just like to kick back in the cell and catch up on stuff. Today I went through alot of my old paperwork I wanted to find a poem that I wrote years ago and I found it so here it is -

(A Lifers wish.)

Soar through the skies with me and imagine the experience of a lifer, the heartache, the sadness, the joy and the smiles. Looking for friends to write letters and send pictures of the forgotten outside. The clear blue sky the ocean spray in the air. as I enter yet another year of my life patiently waiting for a letter from somebody who would be part of my life.

I wrote this poem about a year after I got to prison I had just come to terms that I would be in here for a very long time. but your better off realizing that right away so then you can start to live your life in here. I will get out one day and when I do I will cherrish my freedom and never take it for granted. ok well I just wanted to write and say it. hope you write me back tell me what you think about my poem. and remember my adress is on my profile. with respect Jason