

Salutations,

The vision I have for this opportunity of social networking is to share with you bits and pieces of me. Everyone has a story and this is a way for me to share with you mine in a unique way. So, I just hope you will learn something from me that will ultimately help you better yourself.

Before I begin introducing myself, I would like to address my criminal history. I just want to be clear, honest and get it out the way right now so there are no discrepancies later. Of course I'm incarcerated, we all know that, and I'm not a saint. However, I understand the choices I've made, accept responsibility, hold myself accountable, and I am dealing with the consequences accordingly. I've forgiven myself and am now focused on continuing living and surviving in this world the best way I know how and can with respects to how others live theirs. I can't and won't worry about the past because that is something I can't change. Everything has reason and purpose and right Now has thee utmost reason, purpose, relevance, and importance for me. I've concluded reason and have found purpose in living life to the fullest and in pursuing what I believe to be happiness.

I encourage you to get to know the real and true me. I mean, you're not obligated to write or blog with me, but if you want to write or blog, don't be scared. I don't bite. I am very interesting and have an interesting and un-biased perspective that is basically free from being too judgmental. Mom tells me that I am bit of an intellectual. I am very intelligent and optimistic. I don't like to think outside or inside of a box. I rather like to think with all whom like and care to know me. Listen, I'm real easy to get along with, friendly, sociable, honest, truthful and respectful despite all the skepticisms and stereo-types that come with being incarcerated.

Throughout the life I've lived, thus far has given me extensive experiences, knowledge, and wisdom that has enlightened me and enabled me to be more compassionate, empathetic, and understanding of a lot. I'm willing to share all of this with you and focus this sort of ubiquitous being with all whom like and care to know me. Listen, I'm real easy to get along with, friendly, sociable, honest, truthful and respectful despite all the skepticisms and stereo-types that come with being incarcerated.

In conclusion, I leave you with a poem by James Kavanaugh; Be My Friend.

Ubiquitously,

Michael Green

"Who am I? I am not sure.

Once I was a rabbit's grave and a basketball hoop on the garage, a cucumber patch, lilac trees and peonies crawling with ants. I was stepping stones and a mysterious cistern, grass fires, water fights and ping pong in the basement. I was a picket fence, a bed and a maple chest of drawers I shared with brothers, a dog named Sandy who danced. Friends were easy to find. We climbed trees, built grass huts, chased snakes--and we dreamed a lot.

WILL YOU BE MY FRIEND? Beyond childhood.

Who am I? I am not sure.

Once I was predictable. I was educated, trained, loved-not as I was, but as I seemed to be. My role was my safe way of hiding. There was no reason to change. I was approved. I pleased. Then, almost suddenly, I changed. Now I am less sure, more myself. My role has almost disappeared. My roots are not in my church, my job, my city; even my world. They are in me. Friends are not so easy to find--and I dream a lot.

WILL YOU BE MY FRIEND? Beyond roles.

Who am I? I am not sure.

I am more alone than before, part animal, but not protected by his instincts or restricted by his vision. I am part spirit as well, yet scarcely free, limited by taste and touch and time-yearning for all of life. There is no security. Security is sameness and fear, the postponing of life. Security is expectations and commitments and premature death. I live with uncertainty. There are mountains yet to climb, clouds to ride, stars to explore, and friends to find. I am all alone. There is only me---and I dream a lot.

WILL YOU BE MY FRIEND? Beyond security.

Who am I? I am not sure.

I do not search in emptiness and need, but in increasing fullness and desire. Emptiness seeks any voice to fill a void, and face to dispel darkness. Emptiness brings crowds and shadows easy to replace. Fullness brings a friend, unique, irreplaceable. I am not as empty as I was. There are the wind and the ocean, books and music, strength and joys within, and the night. Friendship is less a request than a celebration, less a ritual than a reality, less a need than a want. Friendship is you and me---and I dream a lot.

WILL YOU BE MY FRIEND? Beyond need.

Who am I? I am not sure.

We didn't sell kool-aid together or hitchhike to school. We're not from the same town, the same God, hardly the same world. There is no role to play, no security to provide, no commitment to make. I expect no answer save your presence, your eyes, yourself. Friendship is freedom, is flowing, is rare. It does not need stimulation, it stimulates itself. It trust, understands, grows, explores, it smiles and weeps. It does not exhaust or cling, expect or demand. It is---and that is enough---and I dream a lot.

WILL YOU BE MY FRIEND?"

The woman I'm interested in is the woman interested in me. I like when a woman introduces herself to me first. When a woman who is interested in me approaches and introduces herself to me, I am intrigued especially if I find her to be attractive. In any case, once a woman has presented herself to me, my goal then is to find out what her motive(s), purpose(s), and agenda(s), are for meeting me. If those findings are compatible, that will determine where and how far things will go.
