

Happy Father's Day 6-19-11

Only comes once a year the Event. But His job as a parent is 365 days which it never ends. It takes a boy to make a baby it calls for a Man to raise one. If you find a Man out there taking care His own Kids that's rare we should give Him Credit.

What makes Him a Father? Things He buy or give His Kids? No! What He does from His Heart without being told. Plus giving His honest attention on demand.

When I was growing up as a kid my Grandmother raised me I didn't have my biological Father around. He was locked up in Prison, I was told about Him by other family members. I never met Him until I turned twentyone years-old. It hurt me so bad I needed Him in my life while growing up. I missed out on so much without His Presence.

I feel parents should be in their children's lives, at all times No matter what the situation is. There innocent Human Beings. I Don't have any CHILDREN. If I did I wouldn't neglect them like I was as a child coming up. I would Love and Support mine until the end of time.

Father's Out there raise your Children with a Woman or Single Stand up, they are special and you only get to be a parent once in Life. And believe it or not you need those Kids like they need "you". If you are a True Father I congratulate you for your hard work all year long Plus patience. It takes a Real Man to Do a job Continue to Shine like the Sun.
