

AUGUST/ 2011...BLOG

Well it has been a minute since I have written. I'm hoping by now that the new pictures have been posted and you can enjoy not just my words but my beauty also :) I cut the hair short it seems to be a big hit but I miss my long hair.

CONGRADULATIONS to my friends Molly and Chela they had their first child, a boy named xavier and they are over the moon.

Thing's have been a little rough lately as I have been in the throws of a deep depression, One of those where I just can't see myself getting to the end of all this, What will my life look like, who will want an old queen ect, ect, ect...I sometimes wonder what all this is for, what have I done with my life?

I find myself lately questioning my very existence.

Who have I made a difference for? Prison can be a very dangerous place to fall into depression. There has to be more than just this!!!!!! I saw a story on the evening news about a little girl who wanted nothing more than to give clean drinking water to kids and was saving up her money to do it, she sadly died in a car accident before she could reach her goal of just 300.00 and now since her passing she raised more than 1,000,000.00 she did more in just nine years than I have in my whole life.

If anyone is reading this and has any ideas please let me know...What if we all just did one thing to change the community in a positive way????what have you done lately for the homeless, or the kid's in our country that go to bed hungry? If any of you know of a food bank, Soup kitchen, ect in your area see if they need any volunteer's 2 hours a week???

Im not able to do much because of my current circumstance but I make .22¢ yes america that's .22¢ an hour at my job assignment in prison. 55% of that goes to restitution every month so my take home pay is roughly $16.00 a month of which I now send $5.00 a month to a food bank in Sacramento. It is not much at all but it may inspire others here to do the same or someone on the streets to do something similar? There are alot of Inmates that do walk-a-thons- here in the institution to benefit local charities several times a year.

O.K. so N-l-Ways prison sucks still and I can't wait to leave but let me tell you it is a bitch trying to get through it. Without my family and friends I would have taken myself out long ago. The constant stress does bad things. Hopefully my next Blog will be on a more positive note. Remember my address is on my profile page and you can always write me directly or just leave a post.

Thank you to everyone who reads my blog and leaves posts.
