

July 3, 2011

Relationship

by

Justin A Barron

Version 2

Relationships, What makes a relationship? It's made up of feelings, words, promises, lies, truth, and trust. What is it that we lack in ours? Is it trust, is it truth, feelings, what? What is it? Love, its the one thing that can hold it all together. It will never die unless you allow it to. It will never let go unless you say so, but then its also something that can tear us apart. Its not easy. It takes two to mend a relationship back together. Both sides must come to an agreement, both sides must be willing to work at it, make sacrifices. I am and I know you are too. Relationships are not mended with love alone, but with renewed strength, strength in faith and trust. With truth told, words expressed, lies erased, and promises that can be made rather than can't. The choices we make can lead us any and everywhere, even nowhere but dead ends. Nothing is perfect, thats why we have to work at it so it can be. Nothing stays the same forever but it can be made better. To where this will take us Im not sure, so long as your with me and I dont care as to what my futur holds, so long as its with you. Love in a relationship can grow into such Beautiful things if you only give it the chance to Bloom

~JB