

Life's Legacy

8/9/11

9:01 a.m.

We enter the awareness of many people in the course of a day. With each encounter there is a little exchange, and we leave something behind. This trail of personal encounters, and not our individual accomplishments, is our legacy to the world. At the end of your & my physical life, what tracks do you or I want to look back and see?

Agent For Change

8/9/11

The world believes that if something needs to change, something more needs to be done. It believes that peace occurs when we are preemptive, that personal change occurs when we are proactive, and that love is a matter of winning and losing. But real change comes from letting go of what I think has to be changed. It may or may not involve increased activity, but it always involves becoming inwardly calm and quietly listening.
