

Is Love Agreement?

10-2-11

To the ego part of us, love is agreement. 8:16 p.m.
"If you really loved me, you would agree with my beliefs, prefer what I prefer, and support my decisions. But true love is seeing each other clearly and accepting each other as we are. Real love recognizes that there are always disagreements between personalities, and it finds them interesting rather than jolting. Only when you're not involved in a relationship can you see this perspective clearly. Now all I yearn for is to express and apply these attributes to my potential real love.
