

Hello World,

10-5-11

I'm back. It's been awhile. And I'm sorry for that. I've been very busy typing up my screenplay. I'm now done. So I'm back. My fight for freedom continues here in the home of the Green Bay Packers, Brewers and Badgers. Go Wisconsin. The real Dairy State! I remain troublefree. Thank you to everyone who reads my blog. I'm sending you all a new poem today. It's about me and how I want people to view me. Thank you. I hope you all enjoy.

Judge Me.

Judge me for the winner I am, and not the failure I used to be.

Judge me for the man I am, and not the monster you want me to be.

Judge me for all the good I've done, and not the bad I did that one night. Don't judge me for the darkness. Judge me for the light.

They say only God can judge, but this can't be true. Because they judge everytime we step into a courtroom.

Don't judge me for the past. Judge me for tomorrow.

Don't judge me for the Pain. Don't judge me for the sorrow.

Judge me for what I've learned and what I've earned.
not for what I took.

Judge me with honesty. Don't judge me with lies.

Judge me with an open heart and a open mind.

Judge me for my sins. Not the sins of my Father. Judge me for my sins. Not the sins of my Mother.

Don't judge me for my complexion or the way that I look.

Judge me with fairness. Please be kind. I judge myself for all the decisions I've made in this life of mine.

Rodney
