Jim surrounded by pain, greed, envy, the most powerful... anger. Cut off from the outside world. He watch men of all races be ridiculed to the most deadly of insignificances.

¶ All the while knowing the creation they are building is one of the worlds most apathetic - no elaborately neurotic weapons man has ever built. Stripping a man of his most basic rights, confining him to a number. This is worse than modern-day slavery. Some say we are given the "tools to succeed, to progress," some say only to "succeed and progress back to that of which you came." He close the curtains after the windows are shut because the storm is too unbearable and he wrong to want better? <sup>w/B</sup> DR
