

My Thoughts

Oct. 4. 2011

am 29 years young. ive learned that you can shatter the truth into a million fragments but it will still be the truth.

we have also learned that there are two things we hold dear. "Women" and "life itself." You can't live without either one of them. Women give the world a fighting chance to change by bringing new life into this world. This means everytime a baby is born we are given a chance to make things right. Now life. To live is to become aware, to become aware means to become alive, to become alive means to understand. To be continued.....
