

32

Nate's News + Call for Christmas Philanthropy, created 16 Nov. 2011

Hey readers, I hope you've enjoyed what's been posted on here by me. If so, I would appreciate your help in return.

Due to my 10,000 $ in debts to various courts + my prison system for my litigation to improve prison conditions, + total lack of outside support, I must limit myself to posting my blog entries once a month. I only receive one free stamped envelope a week + need the three others to mail out my poems to publishers + try + make some friends, find supporters, etc.

Fear not, what I do post each month will be at least five pages of interesting +, I hope, helpful stuff. If anything, my postings will be more potent + accompanied by art, as is this one. Been spending a lot of time on my art!

Those willing to help, the easiest way you can do so is by giving me your honest critique of this blog. Then you can help by listing my URLs on other web-sites + internet directories, e.g.:

www.mmgo.com/top100.html; www.reference.com; www.pw.org;
www.infospace.com; info@justdetention.org; life@prisoners.com, particularly art, poetry + writing web-sites.

You can help me greatly by purchasing typing paper + stamped envelopes from www.winmatepackage.com, or www.walkenhorsts.com

Of course I'd love some feedback, always appreciate a nice letter with some perfume on it, and enjoy studying intriguing net material printed out + mailed to me.

As for my personal struggle to develop myself — some downs, but more ups. It seems like the "bad" things precede personal development, new insights + insights.

An interesting topic I discussed with Cavegirl recently: are any friendships or loves genuine? Or are they all just co-dependent relationships?

Love to hear your input.

With Respect,
Nate.