

New York

In my life I've traveled all over the United States and various parts of Canada and Mexico. Traveling in and of itself has become something I simply love to do and I'm quick to get on the highway, bus, train, or plane.

Of all the places I been, New York really felt like where I was suppose to be. The fast Pace of the city and the people in it was so diverse and always had me feeling like each day was another day to make something happen.

I was born and raised in California [Los Angeles / San Diego] so naturally "Cali" will always be home to me but, if I had to call anywhere else home it probably be New York.

Questions?

Do you have a home away from home?

What cities have you traveled to, that stands out to you the most?
