

When I see Your Heart, I Want What You Want 12-6-11
"Love Your Neighbor as Yourself" implies nothing more complicated than the fact that anything less than love is not love. The golden rule is not asking "What would I want?" The question is what does my child, my friend, my partner, my parent truly want? Love does not guess; it enfolds, embraces, and understands. If we do not love someone outside ourselves, then quite simply, we don't love ourselves. God is love, and within the love of God there is no discrimination.
