

TRULINCS 10157091 - ROBINSON, CODY J - Unit: MNA-C-B

---

FROM: 10157091

TO:

SUBJECT: #11 - Some Old Blogs

DATE: 12/18/2011 06:10:12 PM

I found these in a folder earlier today. These are a couple of old blogs that I wrote, but never sent out. I know I'm so serious a lot of the time, so I figured these would be good for a little bit of questionable humor.

April 11th, 2011: So we had the Memorial tonight in the prison chapel. You know, the one that commemorates the death of Jesus. We weren't allowed to have wine and unleavened bread, but I was wondering: are saltine crackers and black coffee acceptable substitutes? The coffee was decaf. I hope so, because I paid extra to get it on the spot, and I'm not bulimic, so I can't UN-eat it.

April 20th, 2011 : We had a fire drill at the Unicor recycling <sup>plant</sup> ~~plant~~ today. As we were being herded through the loading dock doors I couldn't help but remark to those around me that all 100-plus of us were being gathered around the location of the last fire. The last ACTUAL fire. There were a few giggles. And then someone pointed out the propane tanks.

Oh God, I thought. This is going to look like an accident, isn't it?