

Discovering Your Love

Seeking out to find your love and discovering it has better results than popping open a bottle of wine that has aged since the 1800's. Do not look upon me as a dark and twisted soul just because my personal actions have resulted too a decade in prison. My shadow pursues the steps of your shadow until the moment our flesh becomes one. Your embrace is as secure as the gates that separate me from my freedom. You are the rose of all roses. The lilly of the valleys. Like a apple tree amongst the trees of the forest, so is my unbound love amongst women, rare! I'll sit down in her shade with great delight, and her fruit will be sweet to my taste. The winter of lovelessness has past. The rain is over and gone. The sun is shineing and the flowers appear on earth. The voice of the turtledove is heard in our land of love, which only the two of us can hear. Discovering your love is like glancing at a manicured garden, it takes my breath away; a spring of fresh water which quenches my love thirst; a water-fall mist which showers me with your cooling affection. From the North, South, East, and West, your love consumes me like a tornado. It picks me up and drops me off on your island of eternal bliss. Bees are attracted to flowers, which produce honey in the end. The magnetism of your love attracts me just the same. I sleep, but my heart is awake. I hear the voice of my beloved. She knocks but when I arise to answer, she vanishes like vapor in the wind. Your love is captivating like the rising of the sun, only to be replaced at night by the arrival of the moon. Your love never fails! Your fragrance gives off a pheromone that only I can detect. When your wind blows my way, I'll know where to find you. Until then, my heart will remain committed to finding you, my beloved. Intense and burning with passion — like flames of fire, is my desire to conquer this dilemma of discovering your love.
