

Response to comments on blog of Harlan Richards

Hi Joe,

Thanks for your help. I must confess that I have never accessed a web site, used a search engine or been on the internet - I've been in prison since before any of that existed.

I infer from your comments that reformatting my blog entries to editable text has advantages over the currently scanned pages. I would speculate that editable text can be "read" by search engines whereas scanned text cannot, and that would give my blog greater reach. Am I on the right track here?

I really appreciate your willingness to put for so much time and effort to help me. Having typed all those entries initially, I know how much work you are doing.

Once again, thank you. May the new year bring you health, prosperity and happiness.

Harlan