Hey Leslie,

I could honestly say that all of the encouragement I've been receiving from everyone including you, have been very helpful. Without it I probably would have gotten into all kinds of trouble. You have to stay positive in a place like this, because if you don't you'll only be hurting yourself. So I try to keep positive thoughts, regardless of the situation. Now I do get sidetracked at times, but when I realize what's going on, I get it together. And as you said, it could be worse. On another note, how did those hardwood floors turn out? I'm pretty sure you blew off a lot of stress giving those nails a beating. (smile) You seem like a really cool chick, maybe we could correspond directly and not through blog post? Get to know each other. Who knows! Anyway, I'll continue to only better myself, despite being in a cell 23 hours a day. It's a must.
