Bobbie,

The problem with the Prison Complex in America is that it is broken in the sense that the prison culture attitude is lock them up and throw away the key. Now for some people that should be the case because let's face it there are bad guys in the world, but for the salvagable ones there has to be a better way to rehabilitate and that starts with treating people like human beings. If a man goes to prison and the example that is set by your keepers is irresponsibility and unaccountability. I treat you like an animal and therefore you act accordingly. Well there isn't much hope. Especially when the public is fed over and over again that we are bad people that will only re-offend again. The public is brainwashed and the convicts are attitude is shaped prior to being unleashed on society. What do you think the inevitable outcome is gonna be?

My heart, know that I am smiling right now... Missing you like no other.....xoxo
