

There's a guy I work with in the kitchen who has been down a long time and most of his stories gravitate around how things were when he was last out.

A group of guys and I tried to explain to him how play stations have controllers that rumble when you play...He said "Rumble...if that controller got to shaking in my hand it scare the shit outta me". We all got to laughing at his response but it made me think...What have I missed?

It's been ten years for me. I've never text message anyone, and still don't know what blue-ray is or, a tweet. When I came to jail a pay phone fifty cents, cigarettes were three bucks, and you could buy a candy bar for fifty cents. I'm sure all that has changed by now.

I don't wanna get out and be stuck in the past and be totally lost to what's goin' on out there so, help me out?

Questions?

What is Blue-Ray?

Do people really watch Jersey Shore?

What clothes are popular?

What cable shows are popular?

Who has the hottest videos?

Do people still use pagers?

In general let me know what's new, what's hip, and what's goin' on out there. I'm sure so much has changed and I'm very curious about what life is like out there.
