

March 1, 2012

Greetings!

It is with great pleasure to present you with the VERY FIRST entry of 'Incarcerated Poetry: Intriguing Words of Conviction.'

With today's First entry you are about to embark on isn't a poem at all, but rather a letter that was written 'intended' for my oldest sister, which I have revised and titled 'Birdman.' It was revised to speak for the physical incarcerated individuals in general. Its intent is to awaken society about the importance of providing moral support and maintaining contact and communicating with their loved ones confined within the Department of Corruption(zl)' Services (I mean that literally!) despite the circumstances, etc.

With the conclusion of the above follows an actual poem titled 'Welcome To Hell,' which actually shed some light on the Department of Corruption(zl)' Services and the conditions that we as PRISONERS ARE subjected to in regards to the New York prison system, and I am sure that such conditions also occur in OTHER STATES as well.

It was also written to depict for the youths what us PRISONERS ARE subjected to and what awaits those that choose to walk the wrong path.

And for the conclusion of today's blog, I leave you with 'Time, Friend or Foe? I Don't know.' This is a poem that was written in regards to myself in relation to 'Time' as a whole, whereas I am presenting questions regarding situations and circumstances in general as they coincide with 'Time' and what it all means to myself! It was written at a VERY STRESSFUL 'Time' in my life—a period when I was experiencing uncertainty and doubt in regards to my life and circumstances as a whole. However, I have come to 'overstand' my situation and circumstances as a whole, and came to terms with those uncertainties and doubts that once confined my mental and stagnated my growth as an individual, especially under my current predicament.

Maybe within 'Time' I may be able to provide you with the answer to the question presented.

HOWEVER, for those that are comfortable and interested in doing such, I ask of you to regard such poem as it may relate to yourself and in due 'Time' perhaps provide me with your input and/or answer.

Remember, this blog is especially for 'YOU,' and your input and sharing is essential to the existence of 'Incarcerated Poetry: Intriguing Words of Conviction.'

In the meantime, I trust that you enjoy all three(3) and grasp the messages within.

I anticipate your input and sharing with you in the future. However, without further ado... click the page...

Peace & Blessings!
‘The Peoples’ Poet’

