

Dear Bloggers.

The Chow Hall is still broken, we hear that the state has made their next bench mark, but they keep bringing more people in here, and they are cutting back on medical and custody staff, and they make a reason for the law suit that there were too many inmates for the staff they have in (CPCR). So if they cut back on medical it would mean they would have to let more inmates go. That's all the new information I have right now, when I get more I'll let you know. Hope to hear from all you soon
