

Everyone is Right,
Everyone is Wrong
3-10-12

I just recently rewatched one of my favorite movies "Religulous" by Bill Maher. After years of thinking freely and questioning openly the way he does in the film, I'm glad there are others in the world like me. To say I'm anti-religion and an occultist would be right but it's dismissive and you'd be missing much of my point. Some people should really watch and pay attention. Creationists, fundamentalists and all those that sell certainty. Everyone seems to have ~~the~~ truth but none of it matches. Who is right? Everyone? Can't people be at peace with what gives you peace and leave me to my own devices? People want to tell me about Jesus like I asked. If there is honestly anything new that hasn't been oversaid about the man, I have not seen it. I think Jesus rocked as a moral teacher, magus and government decenter. His various fan clubs leave alot to be desired. He had hard acts to follow that came 1200 years before him. Mithra, Krishna, Horus. All did the same stuff and were born Dec. 25 to virgins. And the creationist make me laugh as well. Earth is only 5000 years old? No Dinos on the ark? They also forget that Eve was created because Lilith would put up with Adam's crap. And if the history was accurate in the Bible the didn't anyone tell us the world was round? Scriptures aren't science! I like to give the bible my own acronym. Basic Instructions Before Leaving Earth. That's all it is. We're all trying to get through life without pissing on our shoes. And for those telling others they know what happens when you die, you don't know! We're entering a new era, the Age of Aquarius. No, I'm not reciting "Hair". It's the age of the formless being. There's more people like me out there everyday, tired of the Papal regimes. The Persian empires and the Scythic wars. It was "good" run. It's not working though. Time to move on. Now, I'm not talking about those that are sincere in their faith. Just those that are cleaving to beliefs just in case they're right. It's weakness and not a good reason. My favorite Christian in history was St. Francis of Assis. His quote "Preach the gospel everyday, use words if you have to." Meaning, to me anyway, shut the fuck up and live/lead by example. People respond to that. Avoid religion that draw people in with fear. They just want ticket sales. Fear is an illusion, blah blah. Darkside of the force yada dada. What ever. Sorry to be so long winded. Life is short be happy. Till next time. - - - - -
