

Please Listen

Today I just want to be heard... there's a lot out my mind and I hope someone out there would "Please Listen".

Everyday I wake up in this place I think about everyone I let down... my mother, father, Aunt, cousins, friends, and those who constantly tried to get my life headed the right direction. I wonder what was wrong with me where I would choose to let so many people down and create a life in which I've subjected myself to a life of incarceration.

All I can think of is "How can I make all this right?" The truth is there is no correcting my past and the poor choices I made in those days. My reality now is making choices to move my life in the direction of success.

I "hate" what I'm going through, I wish it were easier, I'm ashamed of my circumstances, but... I am not ashamed of the man I'm becoming as I go through them.

I have 3 years left... 3 years to get it all together and live up to my potential. I've written about this before on my blog and will probably write about it again and again because "change" is what I think about "everyday". I know this road won't be easy and I will need to be humble, patient, and focused but I expect nothing less of myself... failure is not an option.

Questions?

- 1) Did you listen to me?
- 2) What advice do you have?
- 3) Was "change" needed to happen in your life?

Share my blog with others)

<http://betweenthebars.org/blogs/2042>

Write me directly at: Marcus T. Rogers #377571
WSPF / P.O. Box 9900
Roxobel, WI 53805