Song Creation Date: 1-16-2012

Verse: Three

Bar 57: I use to do bootleg but now I understand

Bar 58: I depreciate the music with the C.D. man

Bar 59: Been waiting for your C.D. to drop, when it's coming out?

Bar 60: What ever's in the C.D. player now, it's coming out!

Bar 61: Know the music good when you're riding in the street

Bar 62: Ride around the block with the song on repeat

Bar 63: Want the whole world to hear it, wanting them to listen

Bar 64: And why the hell your C.D. keep coming up missing?

Bar 65: And I bet you use to hate it when the song skipped

Bar 66: Tried all kinds of remedies to clean them hits

Bar 67: Even kept them in the case and never in the pouch

Bar 68: 'Cause digging through the case was like money in the couch

Bar 69: See this is what I'm talking about, it's so crazy

Bar 70: Music so good it make your voice sound lazy

Bar 71: Me, stop rapping?! I'll have a fit

Bar 72: But if ya'll keep rappin, I just might quit

Chorus:

Behind the Barz: "I Aint Gotta Rap" Edition

This song came to me on Monday, January 16, 2012 as well. This song is actually dedicated to my favorite rappers because everytime I hear my favorite rappers/musicians rap, I always feel like there is no reason for me to even be rapping because they rap so well and leave me in awe. The song is pretty much self explanatory, and I know a lot of other people can relate to it no matter who you are. Maybe it's not a rapper, but maybe it's a songwriter, a musician, a band, or anybody who does what you do. They are just so brilliant in their profession that you respect them so much to just be inspired to just listen to them. In case you are wondering, my song is really talking to famous rappers Young Jeezy, T.I., Coo Coo Cal, 2Pac Shakur, M.J.G, Lil Boosie, Jay Z, Outcast, and a lot of others. I thank them for their music. I aint gotta rap is also a statement to other rappers and artist who are in question about why I rap. I rap because I want to, not for fame or money. I rap because I love to, not by force. I love music. I'm one of those guys who could actually live in a recording studio and not care about anything else in the world. I could either make or listen to music and be content with it; either way, I support anything that has to do with music and will always encourage people interested with music to get involved. Get involved, if you love music, love it wholeheartedly. Don't be one of those people who judges music and only listens to a certain genre. Don't be biased. Support music of all creeds and creations. I listen to it all, country, rock, rap, R+B, classical, jazz, ect. I aint gotta rap but this is what I do, like the song says.
