Well, after that last post I figured it was time to pull it back a little. While I'm not sorry for the message, as diffuse as it was, I do apologize for the delivery. I don't write drafts usually for a reason. To write from ~~the~~ gut. But after all that, it was time for me to decompress. So now I'll go back to biting my words and sitting on my hands and being "wrong" and "lost". More important shit is going. It's baseball season. As well as Major League Soccer. It's time to see if Pujoles is worth 240 million to the Angels. They need good hitters. And if the L.A. Galaxy can repeat that would make my entire year. That and the U.S. not sucking in the Olympics. The soccer team failed to qualify. Again. Anyway, that's what matters to me right ~~now~~ now. Not spelling or penmanship apparently. I better get gone and shut up before I go off about "Easter". Happy egg humping bunny day. ooooo
