

not going to close my eyes in hopes of not seeing reality. No... I'm tired of seeing these single mother movies, seeing the single mother music videos and hearing these single mother songs and seeing these single mother commercials and television shows. It's like everywhere I look... turn... see, there is a single mother epidemic demographic going on. What does that say about our men... us men? I'm offended! It seems as though men aint worth spit anymore and it's been this way since the early times or as far as I can remember. My mother is a single mother, why? All my friends' mothers are single mothers, why? I think there is a war going on with men. And yeah I might not know what I'm talking about and I may be just babbling on and on, but it's a war against men by men. However, I think men can fight this war against ourselves and WIN! We are not animals. We are not savages, We are not stupid. We are so much more intelligent than beast, gorillas, dogs, wolves, sheep, snakes, reptiles, bears, lions, tigers, and all those wild animals we associate ourselves with and identify with and refer to ourselves as. Men... lets end the stereo-typical view others have perceived to be true about us as men. Okay, granted we can not control what others perceive about us, but lets not give them the ammunition to shoot off the gun; the stereo-typical gun. We are not dead beat fathers, We are not rapist. We are not cowards, We are not criminals, We are not thugs, We are not gangsters. We are not the mob or mobsters. We are not monsters. We are not superior, especially to women. We are so much more than these things. I think we can protect and shield ourselves from being self proclaimed outcast. I think we can be the kind of men that the women want to actually be with. The way us men act... I don't blame women for being lesbians or bi-sexual, I think we can be the kind of men once again that women desire to be with. We are not really giving women much to work with, Women desire the actors in movies than they do the real man. They desire the Brad Pitts, the Denzel Washingtons, the George Clooneys, the actors, not us real men. But, I think in order to be that man... that respectable, loving, desirable man women want, I think we as men really need to man up, grow up, and mature within ourselves as individuals first... one by one. Stop thinking we are GODS gift to women and stop thinking our SWAG is all that when really it aint all that... We men have to man up but it
