

to be called a MAN. I don't want to be labeled or be a statistic anymore. If I am a man then let it show. If you are a man then show it. Be proud. Men can learn to love pink and purple, have thousands of shoes, listen to people when they speak, take care of their kids, look good and attractive and sexy, make something out of nothing, spend time on their hygiene, hair, nails, and make up just like women do. We can be compassionate, and forgiving, we can love jump rope and cheerleading. And why can't we? Men can learn to love to shop til we drop, cook, dress, and all the things men love to do. If women can play and want to play sports and football, men can surely cheerlead sometimes or even just be the spectator sometimes and support other people, just like women do. And stop calling yourself a man if you are not a man. Being a male does not make you a man. Just don't say anything anymore unless you are absolutely positive you are a man. A man is responsible for himself. A man holds himself accountable. A man provides for himself. A man depends on himself. A man doesn't have kids he doesn't take care of. A man doesn't have an expensive luxury car and live at his mamma's house. A man doesn't make it rain at the club and hasn't paid his bills yet. A man doesn't lie. A man doesn't need validation of other people. A man is a man, and it is just as simple as that. MAN UP!
