

Whitney Houston

43 years old is too soon to go...truly Whitney Houston is a music legend and has been one of the most successful black women in entertainment history. With over seven number one hits, multiple grammies, and being a pioneer in music her talent has been undeniable and will never be forgotten.

"I Will Always Love You"; "Greatest Love of All"; "I'm Every Woman", "Save 'N All My Love"; "How Will I Know".....The list goes on and on in terms of songs Whitney will be known for, but my favorite song she did was the National Anthem at the Super Bowl in 91'...To this day I haven't heard a better version of it.

I think it's hard to mention Whitney without mentioning her troubles, but I won't do that. We've all had our ups and downs, so I just wanna celebrate the beauty she encompassed, the talent she held, and the joy she's brought around the world simply by singing with her angelic voice.

Whitney, you are loved, respected, admired, looked up to, and will never be forgotten. Your memory will live in the hearts, minds and souls in not only those around today, but those who will around in the future forever. I personally thank you for the contributions you've made to music, your honesty about your life, and the hope you've given to many. We love you Whitney and may your soul rest in peace.
