

jackme,

I am glad you liked my story . I have just finished the entire novel. It's 326 pages and 47 chapters. It's my very first single greatest accomplishment. I am actually proud of myself for it. Yeah, with the chaos it is a very hard to clear my mind of things and think like I need to. But I overcome my surrounding and do what I must. Writing is my passion so I do what I have to succeed. I have also started a journal for my kids in hopes they read it when they are older. I hope they like it. I am very big on descriptions and details.

I've written alot of different things. Some short stories and some poetry. I have alot of story concept for novel that are more so works-in-progress that I intend to get done one day in the very near future as time permits me to. I guess in my environment it won't be a problem which is an upside I guess. You tell me to write about what is now my life it's so hard for me to do this because I have just recently only come to terms with my life and what it is. If this makes sense to you. Writing is the only way I can stay motivated and maintain my sense of sanity. Thanks for responding to my blog hope to hear back fr from you.