

SEX-LESS

Hey, it has been 8 years since I have sex and this is the longest period of time I have ever gone without it. I am a slut may even be a clinical nympho, I love sex and I love making others feel good. To be honest this is starting to cause me to do shit I never would have done before and I'm starting to worry that these new behavior patterns may become permanent. Whenever I realize that a cute guy has an attraction towards me I become extremely sexually suggestive towards him. For example I will stand in my cell door, if I see him watching and shake my dick at him, get it hard and even stroke it for him a couple times. I do this with the light on and even if other guys are in the dayroom or I will play with the dude's dick in the dayroom or out on the rec yard with other inmates around. Now you have to understand that just being gay sets you up to being hassled, assaulted or extorted in prison but to do what I have been doing is considered very disrespectful and can result in being jumped or stabbed. I understand this and would normally never do anything like this in front of guys but for some reason can't stop myself. I'm worried that this has become a permanent glitch in my behavior. I'm scared to death of catching AIDS or Hep B or C because the rate of infection is 10 times higher in here than out there. Can someone out there give me a clue as to what's going on and what I can do to get control of myself. Please help me. Peace & Downy