

Although I feel I've come a long way, I also know where I work, hang out, and who I socialize with will weigh heavily on my re-entry to the free world.

While I'm in prison I try to keep to myself and when I do socialize, I seek out peers who have similar intentions and objectives as I do. I keep the negativity away from me by any reasonable means.

I hope to carry the same attribute to the free world and I desire to meet mentors and positive minded people to do so with. This post is an inquiry to meet those people.

I desire to meet:

- *Employers willing to give us a chance to work
- *Friends with supportive and positive advice
- *Connections to community resources
- *Advisors in getting enrolled in college
- *Advisors in financial literacy
- *Friends to socialize with at social events and gatherings

I would genuinely like mentors for advice and encouragement on my path to success. The hardest thing for me to do is ask for help but they say "in order to get results you never had, you have to do things you've never done" I've never had success and I desire it badly so I beg of your mentorship in this process.

I thank you in advance and look forward to hearing from you soon.
