Dear Sami,

I recieved Your response to my Posts "Everlasting Love" and "Mail Call". I cant say enough how happy I am to hear from someone from the free world so I thank you for all your kind words.

In reference to "Everlasting Love" I posted that piece as a way of expressing a form of love that goes beyond the conventional ideal of it. Often times couples, friends, and family get so wrapped up in transparent aspects of love that without them they feel as if love is fading or doesnt exist. I believe "true" love is everlasting and has no limitations.

"Mail Call" ... (Wahai) I never thought about it the way you put it in terms of only getting bills so yeah that can be a drag. In here its different because a letter means someones care or that your being thought of. Many men in here have lost everything and everyone so the idea of someone taking the time to write them touches them in a profound way ... heck. Your comments sent to me made my day. In the streets theres tons of ways to feel acknowledged, cared for or thought of such as phone, text, e-mail etc. In here its just mail.

I think I might of come up with a solution to both our problems concerning mail ... Maybe we should become pen pals because then a letter would slide through my cell from time to time and mail will come to your box that isnt a bill (Wahai). Maybe it'll give us both something to look forward to plus I get response alot faster by mail than through this blog because it takes weeks for me to receive it then weeks for them to post my response.

At any rate its been a blast to have this exchange with you and hopefully they can continue. Take care out there and dont let the stresses of life weigh you down and never give up on the greater parts of life that await you should you hang in there. Take care and I hope to here from you soon.

Humbled by your kind words
