[redacted] receives write-ups (disciplinary [actions] infractions) regularly. These are given to inmates who have been accused of violating the inmate conduct rules. The treatment team can make a recommendation that the disciplinary action be dismissed - based on the fact that the inmate is not responsible for the behavior due to his having been in a delusional state. The better doctors have made such recommendations on numerous occasions; however, custody staff override the recommendations in order to press the charges.

[redacted] has been written-up for things such as cursing staff, throwing his styrofoam food tray out of his cell and onto the floor; assaulting or attempting to assault staff by throwing water (for example: He is given only 4 ounces of water with which to take his medications and states that the pills get stuck in his throat and he needs another cup of water. Staff refuse and [redacted] will push the cup of water off of his tray. If water splashes onto the boots of the staff this is considered an assault.); for refusing to take his medications (example: he is in a delusional state and believes that staff are trying to poison him); for playing with his feces; and any number of behaviors which are clearly the result of his mental problems.

Each disciplinary infraction results in the charging of a $10.00 "Administrative Fee", and [redacted] various punitive measures. These measures serve no purpose other than to punish the inmate, for behavior which he has no control over. In the words of the Disciplinary Hearing Officer: Presumptive punishment imposed to deter this type of behavior in the future.

This occurs even though it is clearly evident that the inmate cannot be deterred from suffering from a mental illness. It does allow the custody staff to keep him on maximum control wherein he is more easy to deal with for staff. [REDACTED] will only need to be given a shower three times a week - and that is if he is not having hallucinations - and little to no time out of his cell. He will (and does) not have access to any personal property; he will not have access to a radio, television, newspaper or magazine. He will not be allowed to use a telephone, nor will he receive any visits.

The whole of [REDACTED] "treatment" consists of heavy doses of tranquilizing and anti-psychotic medications. These are administered by force if and when he will not take them voluntarily. Staff put on protective gear and rush into his cell pushing him down with a plastic shield. Even though he is an elderly man and not resisting he is dealt with using strong force (unnecessary force) the same as would be a violent resisting inmate. Ronnie is frequently injured during these encounters.

I have known [REDACTED] since 2008. I've seen

Staff assault him on several occasions. I've witnesses that the way in which he is regularly treated not only does not improve his condition, but deteriorates it further.

I am not allowed to file a grievance on the matter as staff will not allow an inmate to seek assistance for another. I've done all that I can to try to improve treatment and conditions, and to prevent further abuses; but the only result has been retaliatory behavior from staff.

ENOUGH BACKGROUND MATERIAL.

You'll now hear [redacted] in his own voice and using his own words - Both said [redacted] and written (on the walls of his cell).

"It (society) is confronted with something that makes it uneasy, but only as a symptom — scarcely a treat, at the very most a gesture. A gesture, therefore, will be its reply. Laughter must be something of this kind..."

Alexander Pope, in An Essay on Man (2.34, 17-18) defined man as "Placed on this isthmus of a middle state / A being darkly wise, and rudely great:

Sole judge of truth, in the endless error hurled:
The glory, jest, and riddle of the world."

"Sometimes the appropriate response to reality is to go insane." - Philip K. Dick.

"Poets are the hierophants of an unapprehended inspiration; the mirrors of the gigantic shadows which futurity casts upon the present; the words which express what they understand not; the trumpets which sing to battle and feel not what they inspire; the influence which is moved not, but moves. Poets are the unacknowledged legislators of the world."

- A Defence of Poetry, Percy Bysshe Shelley

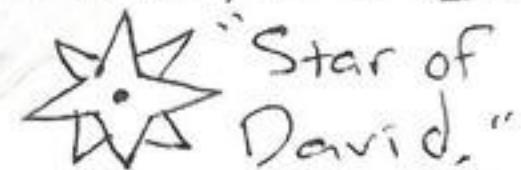

"A power is gone which nothing can restore;
A deep distress hath humanized my soul....
Not without hope we suffer and we mourn."

- Wordsworth.

"Star of David."

[REDACTED] comes out of his cell eyes blazing and wide, terror and ecstasy, crying "Father! Mother!" naked except for the underwear around his ankles. He walks like a corpse raised and stumbling in his burial shroud, head held high, looking at and following some horrid star to judgement. Uncircumcised and unbridled, Hephaestus the lame god of his underworld, attempting without success to reconcile Hera and Zeus, "Father!
Mother!" O, but were they able to hear above the din of our laughing, "a fit of helpless laughter seized the happy gods as they watched him bustling down the hall." And I am not Homer and cannot tell the Story until the end. I could cry and who knows when my eyes would cease their task; no, there is enough of that. So I laugh with the gods, bitter and stale.

Malcolm.
