Thanks to the Readers

Ive been blogging for about a year and I havent gotten many responses to my posts until a few recently. Ill admit ... at first I was a little discouraged and thought maybe no one really related to what I had to say.

Im comming to learn that often times the readers do relate but just dont comment or know what to say if they do comment. Then on top of that the readers probaly view tons of posts and only respond to a chosen few.

What stands out to me most is that people "are" reading and voices are being heard. We all feel so lost and forgotten inside these prison walls yet your reading eyes, comments, and support give us all hope in many ways ... and I thank you for that.

"Thank you" for the time you dedicate to reading and commenting to "any" post. Your kindness is truly appreciated and you concern means alot to us. Take care out there and thanks again ....
