

Ronald W. Clarke
August 21, 2012

"NO TRUCE"
IN SIGHT

Here we are August 21, 2012 Tuesday. The warden has yet to respond to my offer of a truce. Which I'm no longer expecting him to accept. I never really did. I know how much he hates me. And he doesn't care about the Florida taxpayer's getting stuck with tens of thousands of dollars in legal fees, and that doesn't surprise me. The one thing I figured he would want is to keep the DUX rumors from becoming published in case law, Fla. Law Weekly, Lawbook's Journal's ect. For once all this gets published, it will for ever remain in prison law library's throughout this country. And so he will always have that there in every prison that he works in, his children, grandchildren and great grandchildren will see, that he retaliated against me for writing about rumors that his staff was spreading about him, among the inmate population that he is a drunk who can't keep himself behind the wheel of his car once he gets to drinking. And I never wrote that it was true, although my philosophy is, where there's smoke there's fire. And the wrath that I endured behind writing that, yes - it leaves me to believe that I touched a nerve. I faced three strip cells, was assaulted twice property destroyed, incoming and outgoing mail thrown away, and 345 days in the hole over reprisal lying fraudulent Disciplinary Reports (DR's) yeah - you can say I hit a nerve.

Truly it's no surprise that he hasn't and won't accept this truce. My next step is to go to this new secretary in hopes that he will agree to stop all of this retaliation and lift these unjust restrictions in return for me dismissing the law suits and leaving this alone. We will see and I'll keep you up to date.

In peace & love Bonnie ☺