

Lets Talk...

Its come to my attention that writing letters and even e-mail have become a form of communicating that seem too slow to those in the free world. Texting, talking on the phone, and instant messaging make communication very instantaneous out there so the idea of waiting weeks to get a response is discouraging.

I prefer writing letters...its just more personal to me. However, since I don't have access to texting or instant messaging I figure we can talk by phone if you simply want to talk about some thing. Set your phone up for me to call by dailing: 1-800-844-6591

If you do so then mail me your name and number so I can call. I wouldn't post it on the blog because theres no telling how many calls you'd get then (HA HA). For the most part I want to leave every out let available for me to get to know people, network, and establish some solid friendships. The phone is just another one.

ake care out there and I cant thank you enough for your ime, patience and support.
