"Chaos"

What a world — look at the madness. I'm not one to play into Armageddon end of the world b.s. But with what I've been seeing lately . . . it's damn sure making me question it. Just took at super stormy sandy, the Tsunami's the Flood's in Italy and venice and the other destructive storm's and natural desasters taking place. The northern light's being seen as far as Kansas state, which is unheard of.

But to top that off look at what's taking place in Israel which could very easily escalate into world war III where Iran steps into help the palestinians America steps in for Israel and Russia steps in for Iran, and the next thing we know we have world war III and total Chaos. Could very easily happen.

Then I think about the mayan calendar which expires in December. Who knows, maybe they knew something. Then again maybe they didn't cause I don't go for those end of the world predictions. I've seen their b.s. predictions fall at the road side time and time again, so I don't necessarily go for that. But there's a lot of wild things going on out there, that sure makes you question just how much longer humans are going to be around. Cause in just the past hundred year's human beings have reeked Chaos on this planet.

We will find out in a month if the mayan's got it right. My guess is you'll be reading this in 2013, But it does look pretty bad for the future of this planet.
