

"Looking for my Michelle"

By now I'm sure you've read quite a few profiles. But this one will capture your attention using a different style. Since this is right after election season I intend to appeal to your sense of reason. To begin, unlike many men I'm not full of games, lies and drama. I am a Gentleman searching not only for your vote of confidence. But also looking for my Michelle Obama! She, a woman of Faith, Strength, Character, Intelligence and Mature. A woman I can celebrate 50 anniversaries with and a love that's pure. She who understands that love conquers all. And that despite my circumstance, together will never fall. I won't apologize for being a man who's been shaped by the harsh winds of adversity. But I promise to be that Godfearing man who'll walk through life guided by my heart and mind purposefully. I don't deny growing up deep within the cold, crushing, pressurized soil needing to be lifted. However, that's made me precious, like a woman's best friend. A diamond in the rough. And similar to how Michelle continues to polish our President, my first Lady will reflect the brilliance within me that's so evident. I am a man full of passion, ambition, humor and desire. Quite intent on handling my First Lady's fire. Making a chance with me would be your vote!

of confidence for sure. However, you will gain a man who's determined to help your happiness endure. If you are a part of the working poor, I will give your affections a jumpstart. If you are middle class, I will make you prosperous in the economy of the heart. If you are well to do, it would be my honor to cherish and protect you. No matter our station in life together we shall rise. No mountain will be too tall or ocean too deep to get in the way of our wonderful lives. I will be your commander in chief, but with less edge. My name is Rodney Foster, and I approve this message.
