

LSween89,

How are you? Hopefully things are good for you in Scotland. I'm doing o.k and taking things around here one day at a time.

I want to thank you for your responding to what I previously wrote you. I think its amazing to reach out and be heard from someone so far across the earth 🙏.

It appears you hit a hard time in your life with no work and loss of friends 🙏. I've learned that who we are as people is defined in our hard or worst moments so in your situation rather than fold and give up... you chose to inspire and receive inspiration... I can respect that totally.

You may feel like your struggles dont compare to the stories on BIB but it doesnt mean your struggles werent hard for you. Even in your difficulty you found a way to extend your self... in turn, your now working and able to express yourself in a positive way to others... that's real cool.

Continue to have compassion an an open mind with your patients because you never know when your light will shine on someones life. Your obviously a kind hearted person and your ability to inspire or want to inspire is obvious... continue to do so.

I thank you for your response again and in closing I would like to ask if possible can you mail me photos of what things are like around where you are in Scotland?

I'm always interested in other places and what life is like for others. If this is something you could do... that be great ☺.

Take care, happy holidays, and continue to shine out there.

Respectfully,

Happy
Holidays ☺
