So BJ,

So SORRY I've mistaken you for another BJ! Hope you're not feeling too insulted, but like you said about yourself, my memory is nothing to brag about. In my defense, its easy to confuse one BJ for another! And one thing I do remember from back then, there sure were a lot of BJ's! Anyway, thats cool you're talkin' to my son Scotty. I don't talk to him enough myself but I did just send him a card and a couple of letters this month. I'm not in contact with Jimi or Billy or Delphi or Midget. Actually I got a few messages from Midget awhile back. That was cool. Its fucked up when your own homeboys forget about you. I know its a busy world out there. And I was a mess last time I saw everyone. I've been clean for the most for several years with only a slip up every once in awhile. I haven't drank in over 5 years. I do hear about people I care about every so often though. Ellen puts me up on things. So does Lyvonne. With no computer access I'm completely out of touch. This blog has really helped put me back in touch with people from my past like you and hopefully more people will find me. You know, my artwork has gotten a little better over the years, and if you can take the time to lick a stamp and send me a photo I'll draw something for you. Actually I'll draw something for you anyway. I'm just still trying to "place your face"!

Anyway, thanks for sending your love and support. Can't get enough of that! Hope to hear from you again soon.
