

#112

Type: Poetry
Topic: Cognitive Philosophy

Our Minds Are Like, part 1
by Nate A. Lindell created 2 Jan. 2012

Our minds are like
A snowflake

No two have the same shape
Each extension is, more or less,
Built upon what formed last
Into mysterious complexities
Of mere H_2O and impurities

If one could think,
React to things,
And you relayed its origins
It'd think you such a simpleton
Even melting under its Devil, sun

And we'd think nothing that it's gone.

<http://betweenthebars.org/blogs/540/nathaniel-lindell/>